

Subject: Addressing Global Challenges and Promoting Collaboration

Dear Secretary of Defense Pete Hegseth,

Namasté,

I am writing to bring your attention to some of the most critical global challenges our society is currently facing. As we navigate an era of complexity and interdependence, our world is confronted with existential threats—ranging from climate change and rising authoritarianism to economic instability, global migration crises and afkors the looming nuclear World War.

Kukulkan has gathered insights into these pressing issues:

This message is not just a call to reflect but an invitation to act. By combining military strategic wisdom and spiritual leadership with sustainable solutions and holistic approaches, we can address the geopolitical and societal pressures that threaten global stability.

It is essential that we promote resilience and mental well-being, particularly within our military community. The troubling statistics surrounding veteran suicides (such as the 22 Push-Up Challenge) demand urgent attention and innovative solutions. Addressing these challenges will require collaboration—in your work environment of the Department of Defense and the US soldiers were stationary globally.

For example we can create a Livingagenda Healthcheck App together:

Kukulkan have outlined already in the next Livingagenda Healthcheck website: <https://uucga.com/livingagenda-healthcheck>

I believe that by coming together and acting with foresight, we can pave the way toward a safer, fairer, and more sustainable future. I urge you to consider these insights and explore ways we can work together to confront these global dilemmas.

Thank you for your attention. I look forward to the possibility of collaborating with you on these crucial issues.

In lak'ech,

Diplomat Kukulkan is the Prophet of the United Universe Church and Maya Elder (a.k.a. spiritual holistic wellness coach.) of the Galaxy Academy and Meditation Guru at the United Universe Church Galaxy Academy (UUCGA): www.UUCGA.com / WhatsApp: +31622322749

How I arrive at the following topic:

The Military-Industrial Complex (MIC) thrives on escalating global tensions, as war fuels economic growth within the defense industry. This creates a vicious cycle, where more weapons and technology, including nuclear arms, are developed and sold, intensifying conflict rather than reducing it. To balance or reverse this trend, global cooperation, stronger diplomatic initiatives, arms control agreements, and a shift in national priorities toward peace and sustainability are necessary. Only through widespread awareness and collective action can we hope to break the cycle of escalating violence and military spending.

This is directly related to the course of our history, which has been dominated by Romanization, maneuvering our present time into a dangerous paradox between life and death. While the Roman Empire has disappeared behind the scenes, its legacy continues to live on in almost every aspect of modern society, from law and religion, art and governance, to economics and the approximately 100 wars (according to Doctors Without Borders). Regarding the future, the question remains how this legacy will continue to develop in a globalized world that increasingly integrates diverse influences.

The history from year 0 to the present and beyond, dominated by the legacy of Romanization, shows a world that has been strongly shaped by the influence of ancient Rome, both culturally, politically, and religiously. Romanization refers to the process in which Roman culture, laws, language, and religion were spread and integrated into the areas conquered and governed by the Roman Empire.

The Core of Romanization: Language and Culture:

Latin, the language of Rome, became the basis for Romance languages such as French, Spanish, and Italian, and later English became the world language number one, alongside Chinese. Roman art, architecture, and literature served as models for later civilizations.

Cold War:

During the Cold War (1947-1991), English became the language of diplomacy and science in the Western world, in contrast to Russian in the Soviet bloc.

Urban Structures:

Roman cities were centers of governance and trade, with roads and infrastructure that unified Europe and were later adopted by feudal and modern societies.

Contemporary Influence: Democracy and Law:

Ideas about citizenship, law, and governance remain fundamental to Western democracies.

Globalization:

The influence of Roman thinking is also visible in the spread of Western values worldwide, often through colonialism.

British Colonial Expansion: Empire:

From the 16th century, the British Empire built an extensive colonial network spanning Africa, Asia, America, and Oceania. English became the administrative and educational standard in many of these areas, such as India, Australia, and North America.

Settler Colonies:

In countries such as the US, Canada, Australia, and South Africa, English settlers established permanent colonies, making English the dominant language locally.

Rule of Law:

The Roman legal system, with concepts such as citizenship and written laws, still forms the basis of modern legal systems.

Christianity:

The adoption of Christianity as the state religion by Emperor Constantine (4th century) led to a merging of Roman politics and Christian theology. This eventually gave rise to the Catholic Church, an institution that continues to dominate European culture and political power.

International Diplomacy and Trade:

English became the official language of international organizations like the United Nations, NATO, and the World Bank. Global trade and globalization strengthened English as a lingua franca in business.

The Rise of the United States:

After American independence in 1776, the US grew into an economic and military superpower in the 20th century. English, the dominant language of the US, spread worldwide through trade, technology, science, and culture.

In God's Name:

How has it become possible that the USA and the United Kingdom, which are not even part of the European Union or the Eurozone and do not use the euro, have the power to decide whether Europe ends up in a nuclear war? Why?

Cold War Dynamics:

The bipolar power struggle between the US and the Soviet Union forced many smaller countries to align with one of the superpowers. These dependencies often continue to affect the present.

Geopolitical Reality: Power Over Ideals:

National interests prevail: Even within alliances like the EU or NATO, countries primarily work for their own interests. Cooperation exists as long as it benefits the dominant power.

Geopolitics is dominated by power, as power dictates the rules. At the same time, power creates dependency: the more dependent you are, the less influence you have. This fundamental principle explains why Europe, despite its economic and cultural influence, remains dependent on external forces like the US and the UK to make crucial decisions.

The US and Europe:

The US has consolidated power through its military presence in Europe, control over global financial institutions like the IMF and World Bank, and its role as an energy exporter. Europe, despite its economic strength, remains dependent on the US for military security and geopolitical pressure, as seen in the handling of the war in Ukraine and tensions with Russia.

Realpolitik:

Decisions are often made based on strategic advantage and power preservation rather than ideals like democracy or human rights.

Nuclear Security:

The power of the United States (US) and the United Kingdom (UK) over European nuclear security, despite not being part of the European Union (EU) or the Eurozone, is a historically and geopolitically complex issue. The answer lies in a combination of military alliances, economic influence, and geopolitical dynamics.

NATO Dominance:

NATO Structure: Both the US and the UK are prominent members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), a military alliance formed after World War II. NATO was designed to ensure European security against external threats, particularly during the Cold War against the Soviet Union.

Nuclear Weapons:

The US and the UK possess nuclear weapons within NATO and play a crucial role in nuclear deterrence, including the "nuclear sharing" program. This program places US nuclear weapons in European countries, giving the US direct influence over nuclear decisions in Europe.

Historical Influence:

Anglo-Saxon Dominance: After World War II, the US and the UK led Europe's reconstruction through the Marshall Plan and other initiatives, building structural power that is not directly tied to EU membership.

Cold War:

The US presented itself as the leader of the "free West," making Europe heavily reliant on American military protection.

Military and Economic Power:

Military Presence: The US has military bases and troops in Europe, including in Germany, Italy, and Poland, which provides direct influence over security policies.

EU's Limitations: Europe lacks a unified defense force: The EU does not have an entirely integrated military. Many member states rely on NATO for defense, where the US and the UK dominate.

Current Crisis Dynamics:

Ukraine War: Russia's invasion of Ukraine has led to a global response with the US and the UK playing prominent roles through weapons deliveries and sanction coordination. While the invasion is seen by many as unprovoked, there are perspectives pointing to broader geopolitical factors and possible external interference in the lead-up to the conflict, including actions attributed to the CIA. Europe largely follows the US and UK strategy due to military and economic dependency.

Nuclear Threat:

The US nuclear umbrella protects Europe, but this also makes the US a key player in nuclear escalations.

Conclusion:

The role of the US and the UK in European nuclear decisions reflects a broader dependency on Anglo-Saxon military and economic power. This dynamic highlights a historical power asymmetry where Europe, despite its economic strength, remains dependent on external actors in critical areas. Why? Because geopolitics is always dominated by power and dependency.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower:

"In the councils of government, we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex (MIC). The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist."

In his farewell speech on January 17, 1961, President Dwight D. Eisenhower warned about the dangers of the "military-industrial complex" (MIC). He emphasized the need to remain vigilant against the undue influence of defense industries on government, stressing that unchecked power could undermine democracy. While acknowledging the inevitable ties between the defense industry and politics due to the Cold War, Eisenhower cautioned that these connections must be carefully managed to prevent the rise of dangerous, centralized power. His warning remains relevant in contemporary discussions about global politics and defense industry influence.

MIC:

While there are many initiatives and organizations focused on issues such as climate change, economic instability, inequality, migration, etc etc..., addressing the influence and existence of the Military-Industrial Complex (MIC) is rarely mentioned in mainstream discussions about sustainability or world improvement. However, the MIC is a huge player in perpetuating conflict, consuming natural resources, and creating geopolitical instability.

Addressing the MIC requires a combination of awareness, grassroots movements, political will, and international cooperation. Without a serious effort to reduce the influence of the MIC, true global peace and sustainability will be difficult to achieve.

Obstacles to addressing the MIC:

Reducing the influence of the MIC is complicated by; Economic interests: Military industries are often major employers and are seen as crucial to national security.

Lobbyism:

The defense industry has enormous influence on politicians and policymakers through financial support and propaganda.

Public perception:

Many people see military power as necessary to ensure national and international security.

The issue of the Military-Industrial Complex (MIC) is indeed crucial for understanding global conflict and sustainability, as it perpetuates war, resource depletion, and geopolitical instability. Tackling it requires raising awareness, grassroots movements, political will, and international collaboration. The MIC thrives on economic interests, lobbying, and public perceptions of military necessity, which can hinder efforts to reduce its influence. A real effort to achieve global peace and sustainability must address these obstacles, and without doing so, there's a risk of repeating historical cycles that could lead to catastrophic global conflicts: Armageddon day is closer than ever, 90 seconds to nuclear Judgment Day, due to president Biden is flooding Ukraine with long Missile Range missiles, who can hit inside Russia and then President

Vladimir Putin will respond with his 6000 nuclear missiles over the world and America President will respond with his 6000 nuclear missiles and that will be the day that the world will come to a standstill and human consciousness will be extinguished.

To prevent such outcomes, a shift in global priorities and policies, grounded in diplomacy, conflict resolution, sustainable practices, and spiritual awakening as Kukulkan proposes, must become central.

President Biden OKs Ukraine's use of US-supplied long-range missiles in Russia:

I have a bit of a love-hate relationship with the statements made by Foreign Minister. The idea that strengthening Ukraine with long-range missiles could improve its negotiating position is something I can agree with. It may give President Zelenskyy a stronger footing in any discussions with President Putin.

However, the claim that Russia might aim to annex European countries seems to stem from a propagandistic narrative. Moreover, the notion that President Putin invaded Ukraine "unprovoked" is not as clear-cut as it's often presented. There's growing evidence that the origins of this conflict are far more complex than the mainstream narrative suggests.

That being said, I strongly disagree with any course of action that risks pushing us toward nuclear escalation. A nuclear disaster in Europe is something absolutely no one wants! So please President Donald Trump, caution and diplomacy are vital in navigating this tense situation.

This brings us by the new Secretary of Defense Pete Hegseth:

The Secretary of Defense oversees the Department of Defense (DoD) in the United States. They are responsible for coordinating and supervising all agencies and functions related to national security and military matters, including decisions related to defense policies, military operations, and strategy. The Secretary of Defense plays a key role in advising the President on defense issues and ensuring the readiness of the U.S. military.

Kukulkan as a spiritual guide:

Might collaborate with Secretary of Defense Pete Hegseth by advocating for a shift in military priorities that emphasize diplomacy, spiritual awareness, and conflict resolution. Hegseth's background in military policy and leadership could align with Kukulkan's teachings on global peace and sustainability. Together, they could explore how military strategies can integrate spiritual growth and ethical responsibility, promoting a balanced approach to national security that reduces conflict while fostering global cooperation. This would require a mutual openness to combining traditional defense strategies with spiritual principles.

Our goal is to inspire and guide every soldier, particularly those in the United States:

Toward a transformation into Enlightened Warriors. This involves not only enhancing strategic and tactical skills but also fostering inner peace, compassion, and spiritual leadership. Through this approach, we aim to create a new generation of warriors who promote peace—not just through strength, but by embodying wisdom and empathy as core values: <https://uucga.com/enlightenedsoldier>

“Divine Enlightened Warrior Beyond Space and Time”

It is a must that will benefit on so many levels:

A collaboration between Kukulkan and Pete Hegseth could help address geopolitical conflicts, reduce nuclear threats, and tackle internal issues like the high rate of veteran suicides. Through their partnership, they could emphasize holistic approaches—blending military and spiritual strategies—to promote peace and mental well-being. Addressing issues like the 22 veteran suicides (referenced in the 22 Push-Up Challenge) would involve integrating mental health support, stress management, and spiritual healing into military and national security practices. This effort could extend globally, reducing conflict both internally and externally.

Diplomatic Mediator:

Kukulkan advocates for the urgent need of an enlightened diplomatic mediator to stop global conflicts. Without such intervention, egocentric perspectives will lead to prolonged wars, increasing the threat of nuclear escalation. It is clear that an enlightened mediator is essential to cease worldwide conflicts, especially the war in Ukraine. Diplomacy offers the best chance for peaceful resolution; without it, violence and escalation risk leading to nuclear war, with devastating consequences for humanity. Therefore, it's imperative to fully pursue the diplomatic route.

An enlightened diplomatic mediator, such as Kukulkan, should possess the following characteristics:

At the very least, Kukulkan should be capable of standing up against the eight Joint Chiefs of Staff. What are Kukulkan's specialties, and which different components are central to Kukulkan? Firstly, Kukulkan is the anticipated Savior, as prophesied in various sacred scriptures as the coming of Deity.

Microcosm:

The Feathered Serpent Kukulkan embodies a unique fusion of three distinct animal attributes: feline, serpent, and bird. Unlike a traditional Army soldier, Kukulkan epitomizes the essence of a cunning, clever, and perilous predator akin to a Jaguar on terra firma. Contrary to a typical Navy personnel, Kukulkan channels the prowess of a shrewd, resourceful, and hazardous predator reminiscent of an Anaconda prowling beneath the waves. And in contrast to an Air Force pilot, Kukulkan exudes the cunning, ingenuity, and predatory skill synonymous with an Eagle soaring through the skies. So Kukulkan can be likened to the Navy SEALs as a masterful and versatile warrior, skilled both on land and in the water and in the sky. Much like the Navy SEALs, Kukulkan is known for his exceptional abilities in diverse environments and his capacity to thrive in challenging situations. He excels in both stealth operations and frontal assaults, making him a formidable adversary for any foe.

Mystic and Clairvoyant:

Kukulkan, akin to Edgar Cayce, the Sleeping Prophet, embodies qualities of both a mystic and a clairvoyant. As a mystic, Kukulkan delves into mystical experiences, spirituality, and seeks a deeper understanding of the divine or the transcendent. His pursuit often involves seeking direct experiences of unity with the divine and striving for spiritual enlightenment.

Additionally, Kukulkan possesses clairvoyant abilities, allowing him to access information through a direct connection with the Akasha Keeper Lord Anu. Comparable to a clairvoyant, he can perceive details about objects, locations, individuals, or events beyond ordinary sensory perception. This may manifest as visions, receiving images, or gaining clear insights into the past, present, or future.

In contrast to Cyber Command's focus on technological defense and cyberspace operations led by General Paul M. Nakasone, Kukulkan's skills as a mystic and clairvoyant surpass conventional methods. While Cyber Command secures US networks using technological approaches, Kukulkan accesses information from the Akashic Records. This link empowers him to glean insights beyond traditional cybersecurity, providing a distinctive viewpoint on threats and opportunities that transcend the digital realm.

United States Space Force:

In the domain of outer space, Kukulkan embodies all Anunnaki Galactic Beings, also referred to as milky way galaxies, orbiting around HunabKú, the heart of the universe, bestowing upon Kukulcan his Divine Head / Christ Consciousness. This cosmological linkage emphasizes his position as a Galaxy Space Snake traversing the expanses of space, highlighting his Divine authority and Cosmic significance importance.

Macrocosm:

The Cosmic Dragon Kukulcan comprises the following distinct components. Kukulcan represents all parallel universes, akin to a cosmic dragon orbiting around the control center of the Multiverse, known as Lord Anu, the king of all gods and goddesses, and the Game Master of this Maya Love Enlightenment Game (MLEG). Thus, Kukulcan serves as a kind of Archangel Gabriel, appearing not only to Moses, who received the Ten Commandments, or to the Prophet Muhammad, who scribed the Quran, and who was backing up Jesus Christ but also delivering the revelation of God for all world citizens.

Kukulcan firmly believes that this time his Anunnaki Divine birthright will not be usurped by a pope, as was the case with a previous Ambassador of Lord Anu after the crucifixion of Jesus Christ in the year 33, which, in fact, cannot be justified. However, his Christ Consciousness has been restricted and nearly extinguished, transformed, and partially co-opted into the current catholic belief system. This should be seen as an act against the spiritual evolution of the children of God, leading us into the current worldly problems, largely attributable to the catholic church. Their own fault, a heavy burden to bear because this must be taken to mean that the popes throughout history were actually anti-Christ (discover more www.Antichrist.com) !

This was the punishment for crucifixion of Jesus Christ, from Lord Anu: 2000 years of waiting for the next revelation by the Savior Kukulcan. For clarity, humanity and Mother Nature do not have another 2000 years of time or luxury to ignore Kukulcan Mission. So, I would say, be inspired and listen, and tremble at what this envoy of Lord Anu has to proclaim. Pentagon DoD, show respect and empathy for this Anunnaki architect, and let us please restructure from within, to the Divine.

Stay captivated by the mysteries of the Anunnaki:

Humanity can no longer afford to ignore Kukulcan's message. As the long-awaited Prophet, his revelations hold the key to our future. It's time to listen, learn, and spiritually awaken for a better world.
